

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

This chapter will present the findings as concluded what the research has analyzed in chapter iv. There are two stories that are analyzed of the conflicts in The Open Window and The Interlopers. The conflicts include internal and external conflict. In The Open Window, internal conflict is Mr. Nuttel against himself, Mr. Nuttel has come to the country on the advice of his doctors, seeking rest and relaxation as a cure for his nerves, but his visit makes the nerve worse. The second, external conflict includes Mr. Nuttel against Vera (Sappleton's niece). Mr. Nuttel is suffering from nervous problems and trying to spend some time in the countryside. Vera who possesses an exceptional ability for imagination about ghost. The third is Mr. Nuttel against Mrs. Sappleton. She isn't very interested in her visitor (Mr. Nuttel), but tries to be kind to him. Mr. Nuttel thinks that Mrs. Sappleton is insane because she tells him about her husband that got shot and never came back.

In The Interlopers, first is internal conflict of Gradwitz. The internal conflict of Gradwitz that he was deciding whether or not to offer to end the feud, one of the events that occurred in the story leading to the internal conflict within Gradwitz was when the violent wind struck. The powerful wind blew down a tree, leaving Gradwitz and Znaeym trapped underneath it. This gave Gradwitz time to really think about the hatred between him and Znaeym. It allowed Gradwitz to realize that they've both been fools and should stop fighting over a strip of land. This gave Gradwitz the idea to offer a friendship with Znaeym. The second, external conflict between Gradwitz and Znaeym, In the days of Gradwitz's grandfather, a famous lawsuit had occurred. The bone of contention was a strip of forest land that lay between their two properties. Gradwitz's grandfather had won the case, but the neighbor refused to abide by the decision. Since the days of Gradwitz's grandfather, the Znaeym family hunted in the disputed land, just as if it were still their possession. The third is conflict Gradwitz with the nature, the fierce storm caused a beech tree to come crashing down on the two men. Both men were pinned down by the fallen tree and could not free themselves. A few of Gradwitz's bones were fractured. Some twigs had injured his face, so he had to wipe the blood away from his eyes before he could see. After getting the accident, they decide to become friend (2013).

The next conclusions are about the external conflicts influence the internal conflicts of main characters in The Open Window and The Interlopers. The first, external conflicts influence the internal conflict of Mr. Nuttel in The Open Window. Vera is making imagination story that makes Mr. Nuttel's nerve worse. The second is external conflicts influence the internal conflict of Gradwitz. Because of the incident in the piece of land, they become friend.

Based on the descriptions above can be concluded that conflicts in The Open Window and The Interlopers are internal and external conflicts of main characters in each stories. They have similarities about type of conflicts, and also the influences of external conflict to internal conflicts in main characters The Open Window and The Interlopers.
