CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTIONS

Languages are very important to have communication with other people. Learning foreign languages help us to improve our knowledge about language. English and Mandarin are both important languages that are used by many people because those affect much in world trade era. As the last chapter, conclusion will be taken to give summary to all chapters. And suggestions are necessary as a measurement for the next study.

5. 1. Conclusion

English is, no doubt, very important today. Every part of our live uses English. Many people learn English because by mastering English, they will find ease in everything. But Mandarin is also important right now. We can see from the global markets that have been flooded by China's products.

Learning to make good sentence is important. That's why in comparing English and Mandarin, we will be able to know how to make good sentences in both languages. Some similarities have been found. To make noun phrase, English and Mandarin have the same way. The differences are found too even there are many differences in both languages. Mandarin is Asian language and it has characters. That is the most significant difference between English and Mandarin. And also Mandarin doesn't have tenses like in English which describes time in detail. The words are also different. We can find many compound words that become single word in Mandarin.

The differences are mostly found after comparing them. English has its own simplicity, ease, and difficulty, so does Mandarin. They have their own characteristics that are interesting to learn.

5. 2. Suggestions

Comparing these two languages is interesting to the writer because these languages are important. Having basic English and Mandarin is not enough to consider this as a perfect thesis. It is still needed more studies, experiences, experiments, and analysis to make it better.

Therefore, for foreign languages learners, especially for those who understand and know about Mandarin, suggestion and critiques are needed to make this thesis better and give the writer input to improve next study. The suggestion could be about the sentences, Mandarin vocabularies, and comparison itself.